Olivia Newton-John has given big props to Ariana Grande after she covered Olivia's famous song from Grease, 'Hopelessly Devoted To You.' Grande performed the song during a recent campfire gathering where Olivia Newton-John was present.

Grande, known for her powerful vocal performances, captured the essence of the classic tune, "I'm out of my head, hopelessly devoted to you." Her rendition was met with praise from the audience and fellow performers, including Olivia Newton-John and The Voice judges.

The song is a love ballad that tells the story of two lovers who are devoted to each other yet face obstacles that threaten their relationship. The lyrics capture the intensity and passion of young love, with phrases like "My head is saying 'fool, forget him', my heart is saying 'don't let go.'"

Grande's version was recorded for the soundtrack of the 2017 film "Grease: Live," where it was performed by the cast. The original song, performed by Olivia Newton-John and John Travolta in the 1978 film "Grease," has become a timeless classic, celebrated for its catchy melody and memorable chorus.

The story of "Grease" revolves around two teenagers, Danny and Sandy, who fall in love despite their different backgrounds. The song "Hopelessly Devoted To You" is one of the highlights of the film, reflecting the characters' deep affection for each other.

Fans of both Grande and Newton-John rejoiced at the collaboration, with Grande's performance being described as "soul-stirring" and "a beautiful tribute." The song's accessibility and timeless appeal continue to resonate with new generations of fans.